THE SCHOOL OF YOUNG LEADERS

Kerry-Ann Archibald – BIO

Kerry-Ann Archibald holds a Bachelor of Science in Child and Family Studies and a Master of Education in Curriculum and Instruction for Educators. Over the span of fifteen years, she has served as a New York City DOE teacher, and a Director developing afterschool programs. She is currently serving as CEO of her own online educational company, Legacy Learning Experience, which supports the journey of lifelong learners.

As an educator, Kerry-Ann possesses over ten years of experience in lesson planning, classroom management and student engagement. She has extensive proficiency in staff development, training, coaching, mentorship, and supervision. Her educational philosophy centers on learning as a sacred gift that transcends the physical classroom and extends to shared life experiences. Her core belief that every student can learn, reflects her conviction to champion for equitable learning environments; affording opportunities for scholars to unlock their full potential through a balanced educational design, where instruction is infused and aligned with arts and culture.

Through this design, real world applications of student-centered experiential learning, along with civic and leadership involvement are prioritized. As a lifelong learner, Kerry-Ann believes that when students are afforded the opportunity to take a vested interest and stake in their own knowledge, it proves the old adage which states: “Tell me and I forget, teach me and I remember, involve me and I learn”. Her philosophical approach positions facilitators as “guides on the side and not the sage on the stage”. As a result, learners can partake in the gift and right of self-discovery and ultimately become greater agents of change.

When Kerry-Ann is not working, she enjoys traveling, and spending quality time with my family and friends.
